

Pilot Career Achievement Strategy

As one of the world's leading aviation training companies, FlightSafety International understands the hurdles pilots face in achieving their Airline Transport Pilot certification without having to pay for additional training after completing their Commercial Pilot license. Pilot Career Achievement Strategy has been developed by FlightSafety Academy as a unique career investment opportunity for US pilots to qualify for the ATP License. PCAS participants can receive No-Charge training for CFI, CFII, and MEI certifications, secure paid employment as an Academy Instructor Pilot to build the required flight experience, and have the opportunity to receive one or more No-Charge Jet Type rating training courses.

As a US pilot holding FAA Commercial Pilot Certification with Instrument privileges, we invite you to apply for the Academy's PCAS. Once accepted, you will complete CFI training and standardization, begin the two year Paid tenure as a professional Academy Flight Instructor, and complete no charge CFII and MEI training during the two year employment commitment. PCAS Instructors are eligible for Instructor Rewards Points and FlightSafety's Business Jet Direct.

Upon completion of the two year paid tenure, PCAS Instructor Pilots may redeem their Instructor Rewards Points for no charge type rating training in one of twenty aircraft models offered at participating FlightSafety Learning Centers. FlightSafety's Business Jet Direct provides an opportunity for corporate minded pilots to receive no charge business jet type rating training, work at one of our Learning Centers as a paid, training seat-support pilot, and gain valuable networking opportunities with FlightSafety International's corporate customer pilots and aviation directors.

Regardless of the career goal, after graduation from PCAS, each pilot will have logged adequate flight hours to qualify for the FAA Airline Transport Pilot License, have had the opportunity to earn at least one Jet Type Rating, and be in a most enviable position as a graduate of the Academy's instructor corps.
